The Responsibility for the Surplus, An effort is being made in Democratic circles, so persistent and uniform that it seems to be under orders, to try and fix the responsibility of the present gorge of money in the treasury vaults on the Republican

It is true that the laws under which the revenue is collected were made by Republicans. Under these laws the Republicans, after having conquered the greatest rebel-lion since that described by Milton in "Paradise Lost," have collected and paid out for the expenses of the government, caused in a great degree by that rebellion, through customs dues, internal revenue, the sales of public lands, by direct tax, and in other ways, over $8,000,000,000, and have borrowed as much more, all of which is paid back except $1,000,000,000. Under the operations of these laws the value of the property of the people of the United States has increased from $16,000,-000,000 in 1800, when the Republicans came into power, to $60,000 000,000 in 1885, when they went out of power. Under these laws the railroad mileage of the country has in-creased from 31,000 miles to 131,000, and all business in proportion. The Republican party is responsible for the laws under which money flows into the treasury like the fabled stream of Pactolus. but it is not responsible for its being held there in chains as strong as those which bound Prometheus.

The same laws existed when a Republican President was in the white house, and a Republican Secretary had charge of the treasury. The annual net ordinary receiptfrom customs dues, internal revenue, land sales, and other sources during the four years of Gardeld and Arthur wee $277,600,000, the receipts last year from the same sources were only $346,000,000, the net ordinary expenditures during the same period was an average of $100,000,000 per year, and last year it was $193,000,000, aud this year is to be a much larger sum, so the income from taxes was larger and the regular expenses smaller than now, But the Republicans had finascial sense.

Secretary Windom saw there was dauger of a gorge, and he changed, under the law of IFOM, the condition of almost the entire public debt, by which change he and his sucessors were enabled to pay off a very larg pent of it. He reported what he had done to Congress and Congress approved his Secretary Windom acted like a sensible busicess man. He saw that the income was larger than the receipts and provided a way to pay out the surplus.

Again. It has long been assumed that the bank or government which Issues bins that has specie in its vaults equivalent to the value of one-third of its bills affoat is in a good finarcial condition. The resump-tion act, which went into effect in 1879 pledged the payment of specie on demand for greenbacks. Acting under this rule the Republican Secretaries always kept in the treasury vaults, in specie, about one-third of the amount of the greenbacks in circulation. From $140,000,000 to $160,000,000 was the amount kept on hand. The report issued last Saturday by the treasurer of the United States shows the amount of coin and bullion now in the treasury, for which no cer tificates have, been issued, to be $288,851,455, which is within $80,000,000 of the amount of greenbacks now in circulation, and about double the amount of specie kept in the treasury by Republican Secretaries.

This Democratic administration came into power on the 4th of March, 1885. There was then, according to the official re ports, $379,166,353 "cash in the treasury." By Nov. 1, 1885, according to Secretary Manufog's official report, this was increased $58,053,702, and now on the 1st day of Octo ber, after thirty-one months of Democratic rule, the cash in the treasury is $600,172,219. an increase over what it was when the Democrats succeeded to power of $321,-005,866, Republicans disposed of a much larger in come, but this Democratic administration either has not the ability or the will to execute these laws.

It is not the fault of the laws which the Republicans passed that there is a gorge of money in the treasury vaults. They received and disposed of larger sums than are being received now. It is the fault of the Democratic administrators of the law. The verponsibility rests on them.

R. G. Dunn & Co., in the Weekly Review of Trade Oct. 1, say: Treasury purchases of honds have greatly changed the feeling in the money market, but without giving much relief as yet to legitimate business. There are two money markers just now; money on call for speculation on good collaterals is in ample supply; but money on time for commerce or industry, on commercial paper, is almost as scarce as it was a fortnight ago. As long as bankers feel in-certain regarding the financial future, they prefer to keep their resources within reach and though commercial paper has been some what more sought, and advances to customers on legitimate transactions are somewhat more free, the change is not yet great.

After showing how scarce money is in the various cities of the country, the Re-

Thus the treasury disbursements as ye scarcely lessen the pressure outside a few chief cities, and there are fest rather in larger supplies on call than in more liberal advance to fidustry and legitimate trade. After giving the number of failures for the third quarter of 1887 in comparison with those of 1880, the Review says: But the reported liabilities of firm's failing in the United States for the quarter were $13,022, 156 against $27,227,630 for the same quarter last year, and in Canada $2,094,529 against $1.02.913 last year. While the volume of liabilities was much swelled by a few heavy speculative disasters, the fact that a large increase appears in every section of the country edicates marked expansion of commercial Underwear---Neckwear.

Just at this time two of our large show windows are devoted to the display of Gents' Furnishings, one to underwear, and the other to neckwear. They convey but a slight idea of the extent and variety of the stock to be found inside. Yet each is a study in itself. In the underwear window are to be seen specimens of every kind that's decirable-good, rich, luxurious, and cheap, but not common-Merico, Halbriggan, Camels' Hair, Cashmere Wool, Australian Wool, and pure Silk. It is curious to note the beautiful coloring of some in strong contrast to the natural wool color of others. The greatest difficulty some patrons find is to determine which to select; they are ALL handsome designs. Yet each distinct from all the rest. It is not alone the design or color, however, that a pa derwear, but the warmth of the material and the COMFORT to be derived from wearing it, this can only be determined by the touch, the feel, and to that end we invite you to walk inside and examine duplicates of anything that strikes your fancy in the window Our prices are right, be assured or
